WHISTLEBLOWER PROTECTION

The Whistleblower Act provides an avenue for state employees to report suspected improper governmental activity. Employees are encouraged to bring any concerns they have regarding improper activity to their supervisor, or in the case of improper activity by their supervisor to the next level of authority. The Act does not authorize the State Auditor's Office to investigate personnel actions for which other remedies exist, such as employee grievances. For more information, see the Washington State Auditor’s Office website.

Whistleblower Protection Policy

Whistleblower reports are typically filed when there is improper governmental activity as defined by an employee undertaking in the performance of the employee’s official duties, which:

1. Results in mismanagement or gross waste of public funds or resources.
2. Is in violation of federal or state law or rule, if the violation is not merely technical, or of a minimum nature.
3. Is of substantial and specific danger to the public health or safety.
